Mom-mies and dad-dies al-ways be-lieve that their lit-tle an-gels are spe-cial in-deed, and you could grow up to be an - y - thing, but who would i - mag - ine a King? — A shep-herd or teach-er is what you could be, or may - be a fish-er-man out on the sea, or — may - be a car-pen-ter build - ing things, but who would i - mag - ine a King?

It was so clear when the wise men ar-rived and the an-gels were sing-ing your name, — that the world would be dif-f'rent 'cause you were a - live; that's why heav - en stood still to pro - claim.

— One day an an - gel said qui - et - ly that soon he would bring some - ting spe - cial to see. And of all of the won - der - ful gifts he could bring, who would im - ag - ine, who could i -
